

Professor Marietta Eliseyeva, PhD, DSc

Editor-in-Chief, International Journal of Biomedicine, New York, USA

Head of the Educational and Research Department of the International Medical Research and Development Corporation (IMRDC), New York, USA

Visiting Professor at the Republican Specialized Scientific and Practical Medical Center of Cardiology, Tashkent, Uzbekistan

Short Biography

Prof. Eliseyeva's previous positions include the Head of the Department of Hypertension, the Republican Center of Cardiology (2003-2011); Head of pharmacological screening for the Joint Project of Central Asia ICBG (International Cooperative Biodiversity Groups: Rutgers, the State University, New Jersey, US, and Republican Center of Cardiology, Tashkent, Uzbekistan) (2003-2007); Expert on cardiovascular diseases of the Expert Council, the Higher Attestation Commission at the Cabinet of Ministers of Uzbekistan (1998-2005); Professor of the Faculty of General Practice at the 1st Tashkent State Medical Institute (1996-1999). Prof. Eliseyeva has served as managing editor of the Journal "Cardiology of Uzbekistan" (2006-2010).

Prof. Eliseyeva has more than 200 scientific publications, including 3 monographs. Prof. Eliseyeva has presented thematic papers at international cardiology conferences in Europe and the USA. She supervised 16 PhD dissertations. Prof. Eliseyeva is involved in developing educational and preventive cardiovascular programs. She is the editor of 5 monographs published by IMRDC and international conference proceedings.

Prof. Eliseyeva is a member of the American Society of Hypertension, the European Society of Cardiology, the American Heart Association, the American Stroke Association, and the Uzbek National Association of Cardiologists.

Professor Eliseyeva has served as Editor-in-Chief of the International Journal of Biomedicine since October 16, 2010.